WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.-Private operation of railroads cannot be restored N. Y .- Buffalo Air Trip at existing rates, Robert S. Lovett, president of the Union Pacific Railroad, to-day told the House Interstate Commerce Committee during a discus- Pathfinder of International sion in which he contended the railroad problem "is solely a question of railroad credit."

Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific, another witness, urged early adoption of a national transportation policy, declaring delay only tended to make "all classes uncertain and un-settled." In adoption of the trans-portation policy he thought Congress ould observe four principles, as fol-

Race Sets New Mark in 400-Mile Journey Across State

J. D. Hill, piloting a Curtiss threepassenger Oriole biplane, flew from Buffalo to this city, a distance of 440 miles, in 4 hours and 10 minutes yesterday. The flight established a time record between the two cities, but was not officially recorded.

Hill made the flight as official path-Government regulatory machinery to encourage the present transportation system so that rates will pay all costs, including new capital needed for expansion of facilities, abandonment of present method of adjusting wages and working disputes, with substitution of "a sane method of deciding these questions," including abolishment of strikes, modification of the Sherman law to permit consolidations and making of Federal authority supreme in regulating rates, securities and accounts.

Railroads should have the right to initiate rates, Mr. Elliott argued, adding that the Interstate Commerce Commission should have the right of suspension and review.

Both Judge Lovett and Mr. Elliott urged the adoption of the reorganization plan of the Association of Railway Executives, including provision for a Federal transportation board, representing the public, to aid the Interstate Commerce Commission. Referring to the Plumb or arganized labor plan for tripartite control of the rail-roads, Judge Lovett said:

consider the private owners taking over the railroads and operating them at the present rates." He offered two solutions: One to raise the rates, the other, pay the loss from the Federal Treasury.

Under private operation, Judge Lovett said in reply to Representative Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, the railroads could not be operated "any more occommically than the government has."

In arguing that credit was the sole question involved in the railroad problem, Judge Lovett said the government did not propose to guarantee them, and their two children by means of the sail ings, appears on the door. ring to the Plumb or arganized labor plan for tripartite control of the railroads, Judge Lovett said:

"It is a rather bold move of the American Bolshevists to take first for Russianization the one industry that affects all the people."

Railroad employes, he added, do not understand the Plumb proposal, but when they do "they will repudiate and refuse to support it."

"If the railroads were turned back to their owners to-day under existing conditions," declared Judge Lovett, "it is not too much to say that half of the roads would go into bankruptcy and the dividend-paying roads would have to reduce their dividend payments."

Wage increases without proportionate increase of rates would be disastrous. Judge Lovett asserted, adding "it is uterly impossible to consider the private owners taking over the railroads and operating them from him and their two children her alireads and operating them
